Chimney Caps

Installing a chimney cap is one of the wisest investments you can make to protect your chimney. A strong, well-designed cap covers any flue and sheds water away from your chimney preventing rainwater infiltration that could result in odors, mold spores and mortar deterioration. A cap with a spark arrestor also aids in keeping animals and debris from entering the flue. Caps are designed to cover a single flue or multiple flues.

Chase Covers

Homes with factory-built fireplaces have a wood-framed chimney chase that contains a venting system. A chase cover (or “chase pan”) is a metal covering that is designed to sit securely on top of the entire opening of the chimney chase.
